The Past / The Present / The Future

Published by: Renee Dilts, Linda Gutin, Marty Blumberg, Gene Nirk, Kay Norman, Naomi Primack, Linda Holt & Tonja Auyeung

Did you know that the Carillon at Belleview Station sits on land that used to be a family-owned wheat farm and then later a country club?

For more than 100 years this land belonged to the Bansbach family, who operated a family owned 1,200 acre wheat farm. In the 1960's the family leased about 30 acres to a group that built a private country club called Paradise Valley Country Club, which included a golf course, swimming pool, and tennis facilities.

In 1983, the Paradise Valley Country Club became a challenging 9-hole public golf course, designed by Ralph Haddad, called the Mountain View Golf Course. The dogleg fairways were tree-lined with water hazards on many of the holes. The fairways varied in undulation and the hilly course provided a fun golf experience, with many beautiful views of the Rocky Mountains. The Mountain View golf course had a chipping area, limited pro shop, practice facilities, putting greens, rental clubs, changing rooms, golf lessons, and a restaurant.

In 2007, a Denver developer started site work on a $1.5 billion dollar mixed-use development. This area, when completed, will consist of ground-level shops and restaurants, luxury apartments, retail, office, and residential buildings, as well as a full-service hotel.

CHARLIE THIES

Charlie is pictured here with a collage he created. He started with a broken colander and used Wofflin's Principles of Fine Art to add other forms to complete this abstract collage.

Charlie's still life drawing of two apples resting on a pillow.

"Records of River Rocks"

The symbolism behind this painting is that, "Rocks don't complain". The painting references the reflections on our own lives. Some rocks are exact, and some are not.

RESIDENT SPOTLIGHT

Meet our resident Charlie Thies. Charlie is from Poplar Bluff Missouri. He graduated from Southeast Missouri State University with a Fine Arts Degree in Art Education and later earned his Masters degree in Painting, Drawing and Print Making from Kansas Sate University. Over the years he has attended 8 different colleges, including our very own University of Northern Colorado. Charlie taught painting, drawing and printmaking in public educational systems in five states. He also taught college classes in drawing and life drawing as well as art in a program for gifted and talented high school students. When Charlie lived in Kansas City, he was the Assistant Director of Admissions at the Kansas City Art Institute. After moving to Denver, Charlie taught at Cherry Creek High School for 19 years. He met his wife Karen when he was living in the Denver area, and they have been married for 35 years. Charlie and Karen lived in the Parker area before moving to the Carillon.

Charlie's work has been shown in over 40 museums across the United States, and his work is in permanent collections of 9 museums. His work consists of many media such as drawings, lithographs, etchings, oil and acrylic painting, and he even sculpted a life size bronze statue of Christ.

Charlie is listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "International Personalities," a publication based in Parma, Italy. He is also published in "Craft Horizons" magazine, and has exhibition articles published in the "Daily American Republic" and "The Journal".

You will find his work at Our Father Lutheran Church in Littleton; an oil on canvas. The Marriott Hotel in Ft. Collins also had six of his oils on canvas on display. In 1969, he painted an exterior mural 36' x 76' on Waters Hall at Kansas State University.

While browsing through his many photographs of art that Charlie has created over the years, I am in awe at how realistic his drawings, acrylic and oil paintings appear to the human eye. While studying the detail of each creation one could be convinced that you were looking at a photograph. Charlie's attention to detail with each brush, ink pen or pencil stroke is impressive.

One particular painting of rocks, yes, I said rocks, looks so lifelike, if I didn't know that Charlie had painted it I would have thought it to be a photograph. Charlie titled this painting "Records of River Rocks". (painting shown to the left) Upon close evaluation of this painting you will see that it is actually a painting within a painting.

Charlie has also created several collages. These collages are created with everyday objects he finds anywhere. Just to name a few of the objects: burned matches, toothpicks, straws, broken plastic silverware from a picnic he attended, drink stir sticks, and even a broken colander. Many of these items have wonderful stories attached to how he obtained them.

When speaking with Charlie, I asked him what his favorite media is. His answer was, “My favorite is the one I’m doing that day”. Charlie is also a wonderful storyteller! All his paintings and drawings have an interesting story behind them. I learned that Charlie employs symbolism in many of his drawings and paintings and I thoroughly enjoyed hearing many of these stories when we visited.

In the painting titled “Changes you find in our life”. The branches at the bottom, some with leaves and some without leaves, symbolize the changes that occur in our daily lives.

The inspiration to paint this creation was from a boating mishap where they missed the dock and ended up in the brush among the tall watergrass and reeds. A wonderful story of inspiration!

Charlie loves baseball. He played for a short time on a semi-pro independent team with college players from all over. His baseball career was short-lived due to an injury. That didn’t stop his love of the game. He watches his favorite team, the St. Louis Cardinals, whenever he can catch a game. This painting is of his own baseball mitt, and depicts his “Fall in Life in Playing Baseball”.

Charlie’s “Lunch on the Rocks” is one of my favorites. This painting was on exhibit at the All Colorado Art Exhibit in 1993. It depicts a scene with rocks of all sizes, fancy crystal drinkware, elegant silverware, and velvet napkins. The metaphorical meaning attached to this painting is that you must climb over a lot of rocks of different sizes in life to get to the good things that life has to offer. I love the symbolism, the detail, and how the rocks appear to tumble out from the inner picture.

We have such a wonderful group of talented residents here at the Carillon. Charlie Thies is among the extremely talented with fantastic stories and symbolism behind his masterpieces. There are so many more of his amazing art pieces I wish I could have shown here on these pages. Thank you, Charlie, for sharing your talent with us!

~ Interview by Tonja Auyeung

This painting is painted in the Marc Chagall style. Charlie painted it and gave it to his wife Karen, as a surprise gift, for her 65th birthday. It is absolutely stunning and hangs in their apartment to be enjoyed every day.

This oil on paper is an abstract view of the mountains. Charlie painted this in the early 2000’s.

DUSTY

OUR “FURRY FRIEND” SPOTLIGHT!

Meet Dusty! Dusty is verbal and friendly. He greets you at the door and welcomes you to the apartment he shares with Nancy Chapparo. Nancy and her family had shared their home with cats for years when they adopted Dusty, a Siamese mix, from The Humane Society in January, 2004, when he was three years old. If you figure out his age, you will be impressed!

Although he has only one tooth left, he still manages to eat both canned and dry food. Long live Dusty!

“DID YOU KNOW?” The Siamese originated in Thailand (formerly known as Siam) in the 14th century and were once treated like royalty. The first Siamese cat to arrive in America was allegedly given to First Lady Lucy Hayes, wife of Rutherford B. Hayes in 1879. The Siamese are “social butterflies” and “chatty Cathys”. When they want something they will let you know.

TONJA AUYEUNG EMPLOYEE SPOTLIGHT

Tonja, known and loved by all Carillon residents, has worked at Carillon for 1 ½ years, and states that she likes working here because she feels she can make a difference in the lives of the wonderful residents and have fun at the same time. She enjoys coming to work because it doesn't feel like she is coming to work! She feels as if she has been welcomed into our home and we can all engage in fun together.

Tonja grew up in a small (500 residents) North Dakota town. She has 2 younger brothers. She has four children. One son is a Marine, another son is in the Navy, a third son is a freshman in high school, and her daughter is in 6th grade.

After college, Tonja taught several years on the Chippewa Indian Reservation. She taught computers & technology to middle school students until she tired of the harsh, cold, bitter winters, and moved to California where she was a computer programmer for Fair Isaac; working with SAS & COBOL programming languages creating scorecards for your FICO score. Now we know why she is so tech savvy!

Tonja likes 80's music so long as she can understand the lyrics, and her favorite books are the entire Outlander series by Diana Gabaldon. She loves to play volleyball and racquetball. Her favorite leisure-time activity is spending time with her kiddos. Hiking Colorado mountain trails, reading a good book, and scrapbooking fill her free time. Those of us who know of all the times she goes above and beyond her Carillon duties wonder how she has any free time!

She does have a bucket list of places to visit, and Scotland tops the list. The castles, Orkney and the sandy beaches of the Outer Hebrides call to her. She would walk the beaches and dip her toes in the frigid Caribbean-blue waters (color being the only comparison to the Caribbean).

Tonja has a diverse background, including a previous home cake baking/custom decorating business. She made custom birthday and wedding cakes. She holds a HAM radio license & knows Morse code, but hasn't used that skill in years. Amazing, isn't she?

The Martin Blumberg Report

Warren Buffett vs. Dow 30

Over the last 60 years Buffett (BRK) has greatly outperformed the DOW (30 stocks). However, in the last fifteen years BRK has barely kept pace with the DOW, off by almost 1%. Why is this? In 1929, the high for the DOW was 381. It took 25 years for it to get to that point. In 1932 the DOW fell as low as 41, which is almost a 90% drop.

What do all these DOW statistics have to do with the BRK performance? Clearly the enthusiasm for stocks had dissipated. Many stocks were selling for less than book value. Book value is the cash, machinery, accounts receivable, etc. that the company owns. Some stocks were selling for less than cash on hand. This created a terrific opportunity for value investors. BRK more than doubled the DOW during this period.

BRK, a textile company, started in 1839, and shut down in 1985. In 1962, Buffett bought it. His average cost was $14.86 and the book value was $19.46. This is an example of value investing. Textiles, however, was a dying business and Buffett eventually sold it. Buffett kept the name BRK and invested in insurance companies and financials. Some of Buffett's notable acquisitions include, Coca-Cola in 1980, Bank of America during the banking crisis, and Apple in 2016-2017.

Charlie Munger, age 99, is Buffett's long time partner. He attributes his longevity, with a smile, to eating peanut brittle. Peanut brittle is made by See's Candy and it is no coincidence that See's is owned by BRK.

Buffett, at the age of 92, eats an Egg McMuffin from McDonalds every morning. No, he does not own McDonalds, but he does conspicuously drink Coca-Cola. Buffett owns many shares of the cola. Coca-Cola is among the top 5 holdings of BRK.

The financial world has no shortage of charlatans. Buffett and Munger are honest and astute.

Film Critique: Local Hero By Martin Blumberg

'Local Hero' on the surface is a comedy.

It involves the lives of two men, Felix Happer (Burt Lancaster) and Mac (Peter Riegert). One of them, Felix Happer, makes the transformation from unhappy oil company owner to fulfilled philanthropist and astronomer. The other, Mac goes from lonely unsatisfied mid-level executive, who works for Happer to become a temporarily satisfied person. Mac goes to Ferness, Scotland to purchase the town in order to build an oil refinery. He becomes taken with the people and atmosphere of Ferness, and wants to give up his urban, materialistic life style to remain in Ferness. He is sent back to Houston to work out the details of the Happer Marine Research and Astronomy Facility. This came about because Happer visited Ferness to observe the comets and stars of the sky there and was enchanted with the area.

The film came out in 1983 and was written and directed by Bill Forsyth. It won the 1984 BAFTA Award for Best Direction. Local Hero was produced by David Putnam, who also produced Chariots of Fire. He avoided the cliché of proud townspeople who wanted to keep their land in exchange for money. The people of Ferness were willing to take the money the oil company was offering, to escape from the meager living they made from fishing.

Gordon Urquhart (Denis Lawson) the town's hotel owner and Mac had an inebriated conversation. Mac wanted to buy the hotel in exchange for Mac's apartment and sports car in Houston. Happer had the money and power to change his life. Mac did not and reverted to his former life. The film was well written and interesting, and will be playing soon at the Carillon Theater.

Gardening Corner

by Martin Blumberg

There are three types of plants; annual, perennial and biennial. Annuals die off in winter and have to be planted each year. Perennials remain in the ground all year and bloom in spring and summer. Biennials have a life cycle of two growing seasons. Most vegetables are annuals. There are some exceptions such as artichokes and rhubarb.

The United States Department of Agriculture has a map of the United States with bands of different colors. Each color represents a different heat zone. For instance, Denver is in zone 5B. Some plants, like Dahlias are perennials only in warmer climates. Dahlias like warmer climates and cannot survive in Denver because it is too cold here. The Tubers, however, can be dug up in the fall and stored indoors at temperatures from 40 degrees to 65 degrees Fahrenheit, and then replanted in the spring.

There are some plants, like pansies, which enjoy early spring Colorado temperatures. Pansies, can be bought in flats from any store that sells plants. Anemone corms can be planted April first, and plants such as snow peas, kale and chard benefit from a little cold weather. If you are looking for indoor plants that will flower throughout the whole year, they can be purchased at most gardening centers as well as Trader Joe's.

Flowers like tulips, crocuses, hibiscus, and poppies close at night. This behavior is called nyctinasty.

RECIPE BY BETTY SMITH

made with love

Betty Smith has lived at Carillon for three years. Previously she and her husband owned a home in the Baltimore, Maryland, area and in Lillian, Alabama. They also owned a large motor home, and traveled in comfort and style. Betty has frequently volunteered for distributing materials here at Carillon.

Her corn pudding is requested by her son each time there is a family gathering. She is kind enough to share the recipe with all of us.

Did You Know?

Corn pudding! Yum! (A.K.A. pudding corn, puddin' corn, and hoppy glop) The milk and eggs give Corn Pudding it's creamy custard like texture. This creamy pudding is comfort food at its best!

BETTY'S BAKED CORN PUDDING

- ☘ 2 eggs
- ☘ 1/2 cup Sugar
- ☘ 12 oz. can evaporated milk
- ☘ 12-15 oz can cream style corn
- ☘ 1 Tablespoon cornstarch
- ☘ Pinch of salt
- ☘ 2 pats of butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In a medium-sized bowl, beat eggs, add sugar and mix.

Combine cornstarch and 1/2 of the evaporated milk in a separate container. Once cornstarch has been incorporated, add other 1/2 evaporated milk

Add cornstarch/milk mixture back into original mix of eggs and sugar, mix well.

Add cream style corn and salt.

Pour into a 9x9 lightly greased baking dish (suggest vegetable oil to grease pan)

Add butter pats on top.

Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 45 minutes or until a knife placed in center comes out clean.

Allow time to "set up" before serving.

Betty says it's important to let the pudding rest before enjoying it.

KAY NORMAN

Did your grandmother have these dishes?

Kay's interest in Blue Willow began in the 1960's. Many of her relatives used the dishes in their homes. This is when she became a fan of all things blue and white, but especially blue and white dishware. Kay's collection today includes pieces made in many different countries, including England, Japan, Holland, France, Mexico, Thailand, Portugal, China, and the USA.

Blue Willow isn't limited to blue and white but comes in a variety of colors and sometimes a combination of colors. The traditional design can also be found on glassware, paper, wood, metal, plastic, and fabric. Her latest addition is a package of Blue Willow band-aids!

There are countless versions of the original Chinese design. But certain features are considered necessary—a bridge with 2 or 3 figures on it, a fence, pagoda, willow tree and 2 soaring birds. Kay's favorite makers are Booths, Allerton, Wedgewood, and Burleigh.

JOAN BLUMBERG

Joan and her husband Martin have lived here at the Carillon for almost 2 years. She grew up in Newark, NJ and worked in New York City as an office bookkeeper at a garment center. Joan and her husband have traveled to many places. Italy, Spain, France, and England, to name a few. She created this wall-hanging with the 4 B's. Each B representing the four Blumbergs: Marty, Joan, Steven and Peter. She even dyed the wool to make the pieces. Joan researched the letter B and created this family wall-hanging using different symbols representing the letter B. There is an American B, Phoenician B, a Greek B, and the Hebrew B. Joan also enjoys painting and needlework. The detail in the picture (upper right corner) is incredible! The oil painting, to the right, are apple trees that were in her backyard in the winter time. Joan is a very talented lady. Thank you, Joan for sharing your creativity & talent with us!

Possibilities include: jewelry, accessories, kitchenware, office supplies, coats and jackets or clothing that won't require you to try on. Anything that is in good sellable condition. All proceeds will be added to the ongoing staff appreciation fund. The staff appreciation fund is one way we honor our hourly employees during the holidays.

WANTED

Your Notes of Importance

I'm not picky! I will take all sizes and shapes. Neat handwriting not necessary as long as its legible and I can read it. I love attention, so colorful note paper is preferred, as it will dress me up and make me look pretty!

Sincerely,
